Man arrested after armed carjacking

BY KEVIN VINK
MVP Staff

A 39-year-old Drayton Valley man was arrested in a standoff with police near Beiseker after allegedly carjacking a woman at gunpoint just north of Carstairs on Oct. 30.

The man allegedly shot one of three guns in his possession as a warning to force a driver on Highway 2A north of Carstairs to vacate their vehicle so he could steal it, according to a press release from Cpl. Carol McKinley, media relations officer for the RCMP K Division.

The suspect headed south and was cornered by police in a field west of Beiseker where a standoff occurred.

After some negotiation, the suspect surrendered without incident, she said.

Upon arrest, three firearms, brass knuckles and drugs were located in his possession, she added.

He was allegedly found with a shotgun, a .22-calibre rifle and a .308-calibre rifle, as well as unspecified amounts of cocaine and methamphetamine, she said.

McKinley could not comment on whether he was inebriated at the time of any of the alleged crimes.

"I think in any sort of evidence in terms of how he was at the time of his arrest will likely form part of the details or evidence provided in court," said McKinley.

Sometime during that same evening, the suspect is alleged to have committed a sexual assault, as well as assault of a peace officer, with the latter stemming from an altercation with police after the man was taken to the Didsbury RCMP Detachment. Charges related to both alleged assaults were to be further discussed in court, she said.

RCMP officers from Didsbury, Airdrie, Beiseker, Olds, and even members of the Calgary Police Service either provided support or were identified as being able to provide support in the case, she noted.

As a result of the investigation, according to McKinley, Jody Dulan has been charged with: one count each of the use of a firearm in the commission of an offence, sexual assault, discharge of a firearm, uttering threats, flight from police, dangerous operation of a motor vehicle, and assault of a peace officer.

Dulan was also charged with two counts each of pointing a firearm, possession of a drug, possession of a prohibited weapon, three counts of possession of a firearm without a licence, and five counts of careless use of a firearm.

Fire destroys pig barn east of Didsbury

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

A barn fire about 24 kilometres east of Didsbury on Saturday afternoon killed about 20 exotic pigs.

The Didsbury Fire Department received the call at about 1:50 p.m. By the time the department got to the location, "it was fully involved when the fire department arrived," said Capt. Bob Wright of the Didsbury Fire Department. "It was contained to a small hog barn."

The cause of the fire is unknown. The owners of the property were not home at the time of the incident, but Wright said they returned to the scene to find the barn on fire.

"Occupants came home to see the barn full of smoke and already fully involved," Wright said.

The value of the loss was unknown as of press time.

Didsbury Fire Department called on the Carstairs Fire Department for mutual aid. More than 20 members from both departments responded to the call. Two fire engines, a bush buggy and two tenders were used to fight the fire. A command truck and ambulance were also at the scene.

Traffic flow on 16th Street to remain status quo

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

Town council decided to leave traffic flow on 16th Street as is following a report that was discussed at the Oct. 28 meeting.

Derek Sutherland, manager of protective services, recommended that no changes in traffic flow take place on 16th Street following a traffic study town staff conducted during October. The study found that there was an average of 113 vehicles per hour travelling an average of 38 kilometres per hour on 16th Street. There was an average of 10 pedestrians in the area per hour, with .03 per cent of traffic going over the speed limit of 50 kilometres per hour.

Four conclusions were reached in relation to the data collected in the study. Traffic volume has increased due to Reimer Plaza opening. Speed may not be as much of a problem as a perceived problem. Sutherland noted it is difficult to judge the speed of vehicles, especially in a residential area in which surrounding streets don't have much traffic. While commercial vehicles travelling off the bypass road were not an issue during the time of the study, Sutherland wrote that it would be logical to infer that there are many more commercial vehicle violations in this area than elsewhere in town given the area's proximity to the bypass road. Sutherland did indicate that since there is no sidewalk in the area, he recommended that council consider putting one in.

Council members agreed that putting in a sidewalk would be a good idea. They will consider that when they deliberate on the 2015 budget in the next month.

Regarding the suggestion of installing a four-way stop at 16th Street and 22nd Avenue, Sutherland said the evidence of activity on 16th Street doesn't meet criteria set out in the Manual of Uniform Traffic Control Devices for Canada.

The criteria state that traffic on the less busy roadway (22nd Avenue) needs to exceed 200 vehicles per hour. Although traffic counts were not conducted on 22nd Avenue, it is less busy than the average of 113 vehicles per hour that travelled on 16th Street during the time traffic counts were conducted.

"Essentially what's happened (on 16th Street) is the traffic has increased significantly, but not significantly enough to warrant further traffic controls," Sutherland added in an interview.

The manual says that stop signs should not be used as traffic control devices, but rather to mitigate right-of-way conflicts.

Asked by Coun. Kimberley Moore whether any consideration has been made about potentially lowering the speed limit on 16th Street, Sutherland said many studies have indicated that reducing speed limits don't reduce the speed of traffic or make roadways any safer. Rather, reducing speed limits only increases the number of speeding violations handed out.

"It's a fact that people will naturally gravitate to a safer speed (based on road conditions)," Sutherland told council members.

The area has not seen any significant crashes, Sutherland said.

Asked what the standard length is for a playground or school zone, Sutherland said he would have to research that information for council members.

Vance Van Dam, who was one of several neighbouring residents in the area of 16th Street who brought the issue to council's attention, said that while he was happy that council decided to put in a sidewalk, he was disappointed council members didn't see the value of a four-way stop sign. He questioned the validity of the traffic counts that were obtained, saying that a lot of traffic uses that road early in the morning, before the counter was collecting data.

"I'm extremely disappointed because everybody that I talked to ... in the neighbourhood commented on how the traffic had increased once Tim Hortons opened. And I knew that would happen, that's why I went to council to start with," he said.

Van Dam said while he is supportive of commercial development, he would have preferred if traffic from the Reimer Plaza could be routed away from a residential area.

"If we were all light commercial all the way down the street, well then we'd have to live with it, but we probably wouldn't be living there if that was the case, nor would probably a lot of other people. We're in a residential area and so traffic should be according to a residential (neighbourhood)," he said.

Judy Coutts, another resident who attended the first council meeting on Sept. 9 when the issue was raised, said she too was disappointed by council's decision to not approve a four-way stop.

"Maybe it was dangerous for pedestrians, but what the issue was is we wanted to slow traffic down (or divert it) to another street," she said, suggesting that 19th Street would be a better choice for a major through route from the centre of town to the highway. "We thought a four-way stop would slow traffic down. We were a quiet little residential street and we're a thoroughfare now. It's become very busy."

DHS girls volleyball team on to league final

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

The Didsbury High School (DHS) senior girls volleyball team is heading to the final of the Chinook's Edge South Athletic Association volleyball league after dispatching the Olds Koinonia Christian School Royals in four sets on Oct. 29.

The final will be played on Nov. 5 against the Olds High School Spartans at DHS.

The Dragons beat the Royals 25-16, 30-28, 17-25 and 25-18.

The turning point in the match was the second set when the two teams initially could not get the extra point after reaching 25 to give either team the victory. Eventually, five extra points were needed, and the Dragons were able to get the final two of the set, giving them the victory.

"The points seemed to go back and forth and the points came out in our favour in the end so it was nice."

Kyra Paulgaard (5) of DHS follows through on a hit while two OKCS players attempt to block the ball as it passes over the net during the two teams' match on Oct. 29. The Dragons will play Olds High School for the Chinook's Edge South Athletic Association title on Nov. 5.

"The points seemed to go back and forth and the points came out in our favour in the end so it was nice. In the end it was really quite a scrappy little match," said Henry Paulgaard, coach of the Dragons, following the match.

The victory gives the Dragons an undefeated record so far this season in league play, heading into the final.

Paulgaard said the girls were feeling confident about their play heading into the final match of the season. In preparation for that, they were to play a tournament on the weekend.

"We still have a lot of things to learn, a few little mistakes that burn us every so often. Koinonia really played well, they were a tough opponent. It was fun, but it was intense as well," he said.

DHS will also play in the regional tournament in Black Diamond on Nov. 7 and 8 to determine which schools will play in the zone championships. The top four teams at the regional tournament will go on to the zone championship hosted by Hugh Sutherland School in Carstairs.

Heroic spirit of Lance-Cpl. Edgar Medley comes home

BY JOHNNIE
BACHUSKY
MVP Staff

It was shortly after noon a month ago on a typically hot and sunny day in southern California when Karole Sutherland received an email that would forever rewrite family history.

It was a message from Don Chalack, a dairy farmer from Central Alberta, that her late grandfather - Edgar Medley, a First World War Canadian Army lance corporal, would finally be commemorated and honoured on his acreage - land once owned by the soldier in the early years of the 20th century.

"I was just dumbfounded. I phoned Don within the next 10 seconds, and sent my brother an email," said Sutherland, a 61-year-old Vancouver native who spends many months of the year vacationing in Palm Desert, Calif.

"It is remarkable to think so many people have had a part in all of this, none of them we knew. It's an amazing story, one that in many ways defines us as Canadians."

Lance-Cpl. Medley is one of three forgotten First World War Canadian servicemen receiving spe-from the Commonwealth War Graves Commission (CWGC), an organization formed by Royal Charter with the task of marking and maintaining the graves of Commonwealth military personnel who died during the two world wars.

Joining Medley with a special commemoration this year is Pte. John Lloyd, a native of Wales who fought for Canada and was wounded at the Battle of the Somme. He later died at Lovett, Alta. on Nov. 10, 1918 and was forgotten for decades, until overseas descendants initiated a probe six years ago and discovered he was buried in the cemetery of the former coal mining community in Alberta's historic Coal Branch.

"I think it is great the headstone for Private John Lloyd is finally in place," said Bill Taylor, a seasonal resident at Lovett, who prepared the cemetery site for Lloyd's Oct. 18 commemoration. "Heroes should be remembered. We are free because people like John gave whatever it took to win the war and protect their country."

The third veteran is Pte. Harold Cameron, another coal miner from Dominion, an unincorporated community on Cape Breton Island, N.S. Cameron died on June 6, 1916 and is buried at the Sydney Holy Cross Cemetery where he's finally honoured with a military marker for this year's Remembrance Day. "We have to depend on the public who have an interest on what is going on for the 100th celebrations and remembrance ceremonies for the First World War," said Greg Lacroix, technical services officer for the CWGC, noting the persistent efforts of volunteers who made the commemoration of the three forgotten soldiers finally possible. "It is through the dedication of some people and others throughout the country who do this and bring these things to light."

Sutherland received notice of her grandfather's commemoration on Oct. 12, with the unveiling of the headstone set for Oct. 16 at the Chalack farm, located 20 kilometres southeast of Innisfail. As she was in California, it was up to her older brother Robert Marriott, a retired corporate lawyer in Vancouver, to witness the amending of an oversight of a family and national war hero whose heroic military service to his country was overlooked for almost 100 years. "It was unbelievable. I really didn't know my grandfather. He passed away 26 years before I was born," said Marriott, whose late mother Katherine tried in vain for years to have the Alberta government designate his grandfather's grave at the Chalack farm a protected burial site. "Her concern was that it would be plowed over at some point. She had written letters to Edmonton, but to no avail."

Medley came from wealthy English family roots that led to a privileged education at Wadham College of the University of Oxford. But the idea of a British high society lifestyle was ultimately unappealing for Medley, and in 1903 he opted to take a Canadian grant to start a horse ranch near the pioneer town of Innisfail, in what was then known as the District of Alberta, a part of the vast and sparsely populated North West Territories. That same year he met Maude Louise Keene and they were married two years later in Banff. The couple, who later had two daughters - Katherine and Eileen - set up a draft and saddle horse operation on a 1,000-acre piece of land where Chalack's farm is now located.

When the First World War came, Medley volunteered in 1916 to serve his new country. On July 27, 1917 Medley, a member of the 31st Battalion, suffered a severe shrapnel wound in the back from an explosion while in combat at Vimy Ridge.

"The doctor says it is a very good job the little piece of shrapnel isn't inside me, as it would be a very ticklish operation - embedded in the kidneys and as the bomb fell three or four inches from my body as I was lying down. He says it is an extraordinary thing it isn't in there," wrote the wounded soldier to his family the following month from his hospital bed in England. "As it is the concussion so close caused enough trouble inside and started the blood from most of my internal organs."

Medley's wounds earned him a military discharge on March 15, 1918. He returned to Innisfail. However, his wounds opened up again in May while he was trying to put out a fire on his ranch. He died on May 27, 1918 at the age of 39. Medley was buried on his farm, which Chalack has owned since 1976, and to where Marriott, now 70, made his long and emotional journey from Vancouver on Oct. 16. "My grandfather goes halfway around the world to serve for his country under terrible conditions so long ago, so it was very easy for me to go there," said Marriott, who last visited his grandfather's gravesite about 65 years ago. Marriott's heartfelt return to the remote farm gravesite was accompanied by the Chalack family, their neighbours, friends, a committed group from the Innisfail Royal Canadian Legion and a retired local pastor.

Their mission was to right a wrong from the past at the gravesite, located on a wooded bluff where the view to the west is spectacular, with a creek valley below and rolling prairie farmland stretching out beyond as far as the eye can see. Ninety-six years earlier a magnificent Medley family headstone was installed, and on Oct. 18 a commission headstone was set beside it.

At midday, the legion service began with piper Michael McLetchie's sonorous Crusader's March, gently segueing into Rev. Ronald Dowbush's passionate dedication that reminded his audience the once privileged University of Oxford student had everything to live for, but gave it all up for his new country. "He is a true hero and we recognize that fact today. Edgar Medley's sacrifice and heroic service have gone unnoticed for 95 years," said Dowbush. "Thanks to the dedicated and persistent efforts of volunteers we now know who Lance-Cpl. Medley is, and what he has done and that we can honour him with the honour he so richly deserves."

Marriott then spoke lovingly of the grandfather he never knew and passed around a Widow's Penny given to his family by the British government many decades ago in recognition of his military service. "I was there when my grandfather passed away. I was there when my father and mother passed away, and now I feel I have been there for my grandfather too. It is very special," said Marriott, choking back tears.

In 1936, Medley's daughter Eileen was invited by the federal government to attend the dedication service for the Canadian National Vimy Ridge Memorial site in France. The fallen soldier was recognized there among the thousands who had perished, but it would take nearly another 80 years, on the 100th anniversary of the start of the Great War, for his bravery, alongside the sacrifice of Lloyd and Cameron, to be recognized in Canada. "I cannot believe how much effort everybody has gone to for him to be honoured in this way," said Sutherland, who visited her grandfather's gravesite 15 years ago and will go again with her family next spring or summer. "I can assure you my mother and grandmother would have been thrilled absolutely beyond measure. Nobody knew us and they have gone through years of effort to have this done. It is phenomenal."

Remembrance Day

Many people from across this great country, gave their lives during World War I and II and the Korean War. November 11 is a day to remember those brave and honourable men and women who fought for our freedom and sacrificed so much.

Remembrance Day is a day to reflect on the importance of such sacrifices. It is also a time to think of those currently undertaking peacekeeping missions all over the world.

On behalf of the Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills Constituency and my colleagues at the Alberta Legislature, I wish to salute all those that have risked and are currently risking their lives for our freedom.

Please take a moment to pause and remember all those who gave so much.

Colts lose a pair of weekend games

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

The Mountainview Colts lost consecutive Heritage Junior Hockey League games on the weekend, 4-2 to the Three Hills Thrashers on Oct. 31 and 6-1 to the Blackfalds Wranglers Nov. 2.

Trent Hermery scored two goals for the Wranglers in the first period, giving the home side a 2-0 lead after one period. Teammate Cole Laing duplicated the feat in the second, with Quinn Brown and Garrett Glasman rounding out the scoring for the Wranglers in the third. Colton Anderson spoiled Thomas Isman's shutout with 6:58 remaining in the third.

The Colts opened the scoring on Oct. 31 when Cole Sutherland took a pass while in the slot from Kevin Vandenhoven, beating Thrasher goaltender Brady Hoover at 10:02 of the first period.

The Thrashers then scored three unanswered goals to take a 3-1 lead after two periods of play. Both the Thrasher goals in the second period came on special teams, with Dru Hickle scoring on the power play at 14:25 to give the visitors a 2-1 lead. Austin Smyth followed that goal with a short-handed marker of his own 3:22 later to give the Thrashers their 3-1 lead.

With the score still 3-1 for the Thrashers, the Colts took a time out with one minute left in the third. Three seconds after play resumed, with Colts goaltender Thomas Della Siega on the bench in favour of a sixth attacker, Kevin Vandenhoven scored to narrow the gap to 3-2. A few seconds after the Colts' second goal, the Colts again swarmed the Thrashers' net, but were unable to get the equalizer. But with Della Siega still on the bench 39 seconds after the Colts' goal, Tom Vanderlinde sealed the game for the Thrashers with an empty-net tally.

Following the game, Colts assistant coach Brent Youngs said during the time out the coaching staff mapped out a play that was executed to perfection.

"We talked to the boys (about) the main focus (to) win the draw, get the shot on net and get a couple guys in front of the net ... and it worked. Just too little, too late,"

Noel West/MVP Staff

Mountainview Colts player Tyson Schmidt attempts to get the puck past a Three Hills Thrashers player during the teams' game at the Didsbury Memorial Arena on Oct. 31. The Thrashers won the game 4 to 2.

he said. "We didn't have any intensity. The guys were flat. Three Hills outworked us. That's the bottom line."

Youngs said in a post-game discussion with the players, the coaching staff re-iterated the importance of playing hard throughout the game, as opposed to only a few minutes, as happened against the Thrashers.

"We gotta play with a little more intensity. We can't just show up in the third period. We took the play to them, we dominated the third period, we outshot them (25-7 in the third period), but we can't wait until the end to do that. We gotta play 60 minutes," Youngs said.

Town council gives support to Rosebud Run

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

Town council agreed to give the Rosebud Run Sleddog Society $300 for the upcoming race season.

The decision was made during the Oct. 28 council meeting after the society asked council for its continued sponsorship.

While councillors who expressed an opinion said they generally supported the society and its aims, they nonetheless pointed out that the society operates within Mountain View County and not Didsbury.

"I want everybody to understand that (there are) a lot of benefits to the town," said Coun. Lavar Adams.

Bill Windsor, president of the Rosebud Run Sleddog Society, told councillors the recent dryland race that was held at Rosebud Park was extremely successful and that many people participating in the race stayed in Didsbury during the two-day event and spent money in the community. While he said he hopes future dryland races will garner more participation, the winter races generate much more participation and spectators who use services in the community.

In a letter to Mayor Rick Mousseau asking for the support, Windsor said the society has made significant upgrades to the park. The society raised three of the seven bridges on the trail after high runoff in the spring made the projects necessary. Windsor said money from sponsors helped pay for the upgrades. The society plans to raise the four remaining bridges in 2015.

Great Business Opportunity for Didsbury and area.

All Cash Business with good return. Best technologies in the industry with business plan.

BIRD, DONALD DOUGLAS March 31, 1940 - October 22, 2014

Don passed away peacefully at the Red Deer Hospice after a brief fight with cancer at the age of 74. Don grew up in the Cremona area and joined the Navy in 1959 and served on the East coast allowing him to pursue his desire to see the world. He was a steam engineer and worked in various gas plants throughout Alberta. He owned and operated a truck wash in Rocky Mountain House with friend Cueball Morrison and finished up his work career as a pipeline inspector. Don loved sailing, camping, woodworking, reading, polishing his vehicles and hand feeding the chickadees. He had a great sense of humor and took pride in being a hardworking honest man where only a handshake was needed to complete a deal.

He is survived by his wife of 54 years, Maxine, his children; Steven (Rebecca) Bird, Carmen (Raymond) Lee and Shelley OpdenDries (Kevin Eliuk), grandchildren; Spencer, Erika, Madison, Brie-Anne, Tanis, Katelyn, Danielle and Kevin, sisters; Marjorie (Donnie) McKinnon and Jeanette (Larry) Umbach as well as numerous in laws, nieces, nephews and friends.

As per Don's request there will not be a service.

In lieu of flowers, donations in Don's honor may be made directly to the Red Deer Hospice Society, 99 Arnot Avenue, Red Deer, AB, T4R 3S6 or www.reddeerhospice.com
